Mike,

On April 20th and then again on April 22nd, Emmett McDowell emailed me as a member of the Andy Boden for Sheriff Campaign, asking if I could meet with them for a few minutes to discuss "a matter that I believe is of some importance to the party". We agreed that I would meet them at the Hampton Diner on April 22nd after 6PM.

I arrived at approximately 6PM and Emmett and Ed Pandisua greeted me. They were seated to the left toward the back of the dining area near the door to the meeting room.

They proceeded to tell me that they had hoped to run a spirited campaign against the Sheriff, knowing that they were under funded and unlikely to win. They indicated that as a result of the actions taken against Andy Boden, other individuals were upset and set out to obtain a video that was described as the worst kept secret in Sussex County. I indicated that I was not aware of any video or issues with the Sheriff. They indicated that the video was of the Sheriff (not in uniform) and a young woman Stillwater Firefighter (in uniform) engaged in inappropriate behavior. I was told that the Sheriff was unlikely to survive this incident politically or legally and that the matter, its alleged cover up, as well as the Incident associated with Andy Boden's suspension were already delivered to the State Attorney General's office and that legal proceedings were in motion already and likely imminent.

We spoke for what was probably no more than 20-30 minutes in total. They indicated that since the issue had the potential to have a negative image against the party, they thought it was appropriate that they let me know it was coming.

I said thank you for letting me know, that I would wait to see and hear what was about to happen in public, and see what happens from there. I made no promises to do anything and wasn't asked to do anything in particular about our meeting.

Please let me know if you have any questions.

Subject: Political Attacks During the County Sheriff Election of 2019

I am writing to express my concerns regarding the information contained in the News 4 report covering the elections. As I was a range officer at this time, it disturbs me to see that the information reflected in this report may not be accurate. As a retired officer, I do not recall hazing of any kind during my career at the facility. Nor do I recall the use of any hoods, with the exception of spit masks. During the program it mentions a former Correction Officer Jon White who also speaks during this program about being hazed. He even made a statement about having something go in and out of his mouth during a Restraint Chair Training. The news also showed a picture that showed something like a black hood on an individual, we never used any black hoods, we used spit masks but they didn't look like that picture. I would also think that if a hood was on someone, how can an item go in and out of the mouth?

As far as I am aware, nothing was ever reported from Jon White regarding any inappropriate conduct during any range training with our department.

I just thought I should share my thoughts with you because I have no idea what some of the staff up there in NJ are doing but I don't like it. Hope all is well with you.

Regarding the statements made by Jonathan White on channel 4 I Team. I was the training officer during the period of his employment. I can say that we never used black hood to cover anyone faces. We did use "spit" nets which is a very fine net that would not allow body fluids to pass through, it would also prevent any items to enter. We did conduct training utilizing the restraint chair, and how to properly place a spit net on an individual. I am unable to recall any type of event as described by Mr. White. I am sure that if an event of that nature took place, I would have remembered it. I also find it very hard that a grown man would allow such a thing to happen to him and not say anything or make a formal complaint. Further more, if an event of that nature had taken place, I am sure that more staff members would have come forward and made a complaint. It is very obvious that the picture was altered and made to look worse to fit the needs of the individual who produced it.

On April 22, 2019, I saw a post on the Facebook page of Deva Eh, who has been identified as David Northern. Mr. Northern is a former sheriff's corrections officer who is currently employed as a patrolman with the Andover Township Police Department.

Mr. Northern's Facebook page is an open public page. The post of concern has been linked to other pages to include the Sheriff's Office Facebook page. This attached post alleges that the Sheriff's Office falsified a fit for duty exam and released the contents to the media regarding Sheriff's corrections employee and candidate for Sheriff Lt. Andrew Boden. Although completely false, the allegations Mr. Northern has made constitutes a crime.

Mr. Northern's nonfactual public assertion of unlawful misconduct against the Sheriff's Office should be investigated.

Is everyone's department like this or is Sussex County New Jersey an anomaly?

An excerpt from the article

"But conditions at the jail were getting worse primarily due to a growing culture of insider favoritism and retribution. The Sheriff has been accused of being out of touch and "distracted" for some time. The rash of grievances has been steadily growing for some time with several corrections officers seeking individual meetings with outsiders to publicize their frustration. The allegations point out the repeated actions of Sgt. Erich Olsen under the direct command of Sheriff Strada to harass corrections officers."

What the NJ Herald reporter failed to mention was that Andy actually passed the department ordered Fit For Duty exam. That info was then changed to fit the sheriffs narrative, after the doctor and the undersheriff told him he passed. The NJ Herald got played and was used to print a HIPPA violation. The Fit For Duty results were sent from Andy's attorney to the county attorney. It then "mysteriously" ended up on the reporter's desk, and then printed. The NJ Herald was "allegedly" told that Andy released the Fit For Duty results. Lol. Yeah sure, a guy fails a Fit For Duty and then releases that to the media? I refuse to believe that people are gullible enough to believe that. The objective was to damage Andy, that much is clear. Falsifying a fit for duty exam, releasing it to the media, using mental health to destroy your opponent in a political race? I've seen some disgusting, horrible things done to people throughout my years, but I'd say this one ranks up there amongst the worst. The NJ Herald should print the story they have, as well as a full apology to Andy.

I reread the article. In my personal opinion, this guy is being railroaded. Using a fitness for duty exam as retaliation is an old and scummy tactic. I think if Boden's attorney turns over enough rocks, he may find facts tending to indicate the fitness for duty was a retaliatory, negative job action. The Undersheriff appears inordinately motivated to scour Boden's personnel file to build a disciplinary case against him. The Undersheriff didn't know Boden was going to run for Sheriff? That is completely unbelievable in my opinion. I don't know Boden, so I am not taking sides in terms of the Sheriff race, or whether there is any merit to the charges, simply pointing out the basis of the case is highly suspect and stinks of political retaliation. - NJLEN

Can you please look into this illegal situation at the Sussex County Jail? As of this past Friday, Corrections Officers are being required to purchase rubber gloves from a vending machine in the jail - gloves which they may need to protect them and to do their job safely.

This is illegal and is in violation of PEOSHA standards, as personal protective equipment (PPE) must be provided free by the employer. This would be a great story to investigate and report on.

Thank you in advance.

For those on the fence, if this coverage and the cowardly avoidance of an interview and debate doesn't finalize your decision for next week, then don't cry when the next lawsuit from within or OSHA violation occurs.

today's "our opinion" would be a Strada endorsement. It wasn't. It also wasn't a Boden endorsement. Instead, it was probably the most neutrally written opinion of theirs that I have seen in many years, if ever. I commend them for that!

The Star Ledger editorial was stronger and they encourage voting Strada out. This is a good read regarding Strada's stance on the "Sanctuary" policy. While I commend the County for standing against it, at the end of the day the AG has the legal authority to direct NJ law enforcement (Authorized by: Criminal Justice Act of 1970). In essence, Strada is making campaign promises that legally he can not keep. It is all smoke and mirrors.

My mind is made up: Andy Boden has earned my vote. To those who support Strada, I respect your position.

While the election outcome has little bearing in my personal life (besides tax money), I can not and will not vote for a "leader" who has had all of the above achievements in almost nine years. Exactly why I believe strongly in term limits.

Ray, the duties of sheriff have NOTHING to do with the second amendment, with hunting, or with abortion. This is nothing more than a distraction tactic funded by his reported $20k+ campaign. So regardless where each stands on these topics, they are realistically non-issues as it relates to their office. If Strada was running for assembly or senate, perhaps it would be a bit more relevant.

I just want to let everyone know that the current Sheriff of Sussex County was called out for abusing employees from a half dozen former employees and his solution was to erase the comments and block the individuals voicing the concerns of the people who still work for him. The people who still work for him have no voice. If they speak out they will be crushed and be retaliated against. Is that what a real leader does? If you live or work in Sussex County, you should be very concerned about this.

Firefighter in Strada video: It's 'fabricated'

There was no inappropriate touching, no complaint made, woman says in statement

By LORI COMSTOCK
lcomstock@njherald.com

The firefighter who says she is the woman standing next to Sussex County Sheriff Mike Strada in a video allegedly recorded during a 2018 event in Stillwater says he never touched her inappropriately, calling the video and still images "completely fabricated."

The woman, who released a statement to the New Jersey Herald but has requested her name not be released to protect her family's privacy, also called Strada, who is up for reelection and is currently serving his ninth year as the county sheriff, an "honest, decent public official."

"I want to set the record straight that Sheriff Strada never touched me inappropriately," her statement said. "I never made any claims against the sheriff and I certainly never asked for an investigation by anyone into anything involving the sheriff."

The woman disclosed her name to the New Jersey Herald to verify her identity.

She also called out the sender of the video and accompanying details of what he alleged happened at a February 2018 installation dinner for the Stillwater Fire Department. The man, who identified himself as "David Kazneer" — a name that could not be found in public records — sent the six-second video, a detailed description of what he alleged happened and still images to more than 150 people, many of whom were part of media organizations.

On Wednesday, Strada released a statement to the media saying the video was "doctored" and called it a "gutter-level political attack that goes beyond anything we have ever witnessed in Sussex County and demonstrates why this individual is unsuitable to hold any public office, anywhere." Strada has accused the campaign of his challenger in the June Republican primary, Andy Boden, of circulating the email.

Boden on Saturday denied that he and his campaign had any part in the release of the video and said he and his campaign had no knowledge of it. He also said he could not comment about the event in 2018 because he was not present at it.

Boden, a Sussex County corrections officer and lieutenant, was suspended from his job without pay in March, a day after announcing his candidacy. While his suspension stemmed from an argument he had with a fellow officer and his subsequent reaction to it, Boden's campaign claims Boden was targeted by Strada after announcing his run.

"I have been under constant attack since I announced my run for sheriff," Boden said.

Boden said he decided to run for sheriff in the middle of December and that Strada knew of Boden's decision in January.

In the woman's statement, which appears to echo Strada's, she goes on to state that the "controversy over what seems to be an enhanced, six-second video" was fabricated by a "man who is shamelessly hiding behind a phony name, a phony Facebook page and the #MeToo movement to defame people purely for political gain."

The video, taken inside the Stillwater firehouse, appears to show Strada standing at a bar area with his left hand touching the backside of an unidentified woman. The woman, in uniform, does not appear to react to Strada, who appears to be rubbing her backside before the video cuts out.

In the email sent Tuesday evening, "Kazneer" claimed the touching was unwanted and the woman had complained about Strada's "inappropriate and criminal behavior" before he was "escorted" out of the building by two men.

No other video from the event has been made available, nor has anyone been able to confirm those details.

The New Jersey Herald has made several attempts to contact "Kazneer" but has been unable to reach him.

Strada indicated Tuesday that he was referring the matter to his attorney, whom he has not identified.

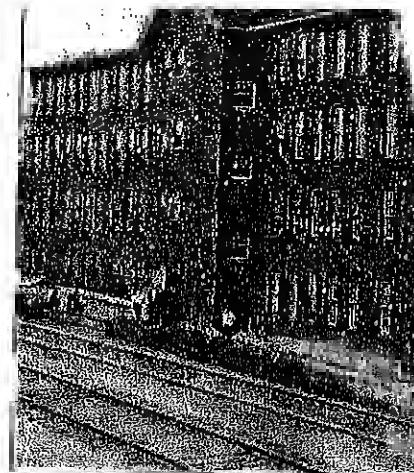

According to another source who is in possession of the video, on April 3, several individuals physically delivered the video and accompanying documents, text messages and a "witness" statement to the state Office of Public Integrity and Accountability, a unit within the state's Office of the Attorney General that investigates criminal abuses by federal, state and local officials.

The Office of the Attorney General has neither confirmed nor denied an investigation was opened.

In her statement, the woman goes on to state that the "only thing" she is a victim of is a "huge and unwarranted invasion of my privacy, which has brought great distress to my family."

"I am urging responsible people and the media not to give any additional attention or credence to this despicable social media stalker and to allow my family and I to go on with our lives without future intrusion," she concluded.

Subject: Channel 4 News Story

I write this letter to you to outline false reporting by Channel 4 News, Sarah Wallace (Wallace), Jonathan White (White) and Michael Scuzzese (Scuzzese) which aired on May 29, 2019.

Sarah Wallace begins her story off by introducing White and goes on to say he volunteered to play the role of an inmate but never expected the hazing act that followed by the training officer. At this time of this training, I was not in fact the training officer. I was however, an officer assigned to the 1500-2300 shift and was also assigned to training that day.

White started with the agency in 2009 and resigned in 2012. I did not become the Training Officer until 2014. Sergeant George Arnot, Retired, was the training officer at the time of this training.

I can assure you that the photo was altered to portray that White was wearing a black hood (see attached photos). Our agency has never had/used a black hood, we only use commercially produced hoods (spit masks) produced for medical and law enforcement personnel. White goes on to say that I pretended the remote was my penis and put in and out of his mouth. This too is a false statement as this did not happen.

White claims that I told everyone that from that point on everyone would refer to him as "Gay White." This is also a false statement. White received that name from his fellow workers and army buddies, as there were two officers whom worked for the agency whose last names were both White. To indicate the difference, they jokingly began to call him "Gay White." This was not started by me, but rather his "friends."

Wallace goes on to say that White could not take the conflict and left for another agency. However, he left because he was outspoken about wanting to become a Police Officer and to "go where real money was made." At that time his starting salary was $33,713.00. In fact, after he left our agency, he left the agency he went to for another after a short period of employment.

Wallace then begins talking about Scuzzese and shows several documents which were blurred out but outlines one line from his report where it stated "I cannot tolerate working with, nor alongside, Sergeant Olsen." This is false.

I have provided several documents to Internal Affairs pertaining to the complaints filed against me after I reported an incident when Scuzzese was the Shift Commander, specifically, an incident in December 2017 when an officer assaulted another resulting in injury. Sgt. Scuzzese failed to act and his friend, the officer who committed the assault, was suspended. Therefore, there is hate towards me.

During his employment Scuzzese was also attempting to leave the department for other agencies including the Sussex County Prosecutor's Office and Byram Township Police Department. Scuzzese wanted out as soon as he got in to Corrections. At one point, Scuzzese even asked me to be a reference for him while applying to Byram Township Police Department.

The reports of these individuals are without merit, deceitful and defamatory. These false statements and comments, without a doubt, are intended to hurt my character, position, family, department and you as they are known supporters of Andrew Boden, who is running for Sheriff of Sussex County.

What the NJ Herald reporter failed to mention was that Andy actually passed the department ordered Fit For Duty exam. That info was then changed to fit the sheriff's narrative, after the doctor and the undersheriff told him he passed. The NJ Herald got played and was used to print a HIPPA violation. The Fit For Duty results were sent from Andy's attorney to the county attorney. It then "mysteriously" ended up on the reporter's desk, and then printed. The NJ Herald was "allegedly" told that Andy released the Fit For Duty results. Lol. Yeah sure, a guy fails a Fit For Duty and then releases the to the media? I refuse to believe that people are gullible enough to believe that. The objective was to damage Andy, that much is clear. Falsifying a fit for duty exam, releasing it to the media, using mental health to destroy your opponent in a political race? I've seen some disgusting, horrible things done to people throughout my years, but I'd say this one ranks up there amongst the worst. The NJ Herald should print the story they have, as well as a full apology to Andy.

Jail officer running for sheriff has disciplinary hearing
- njherald

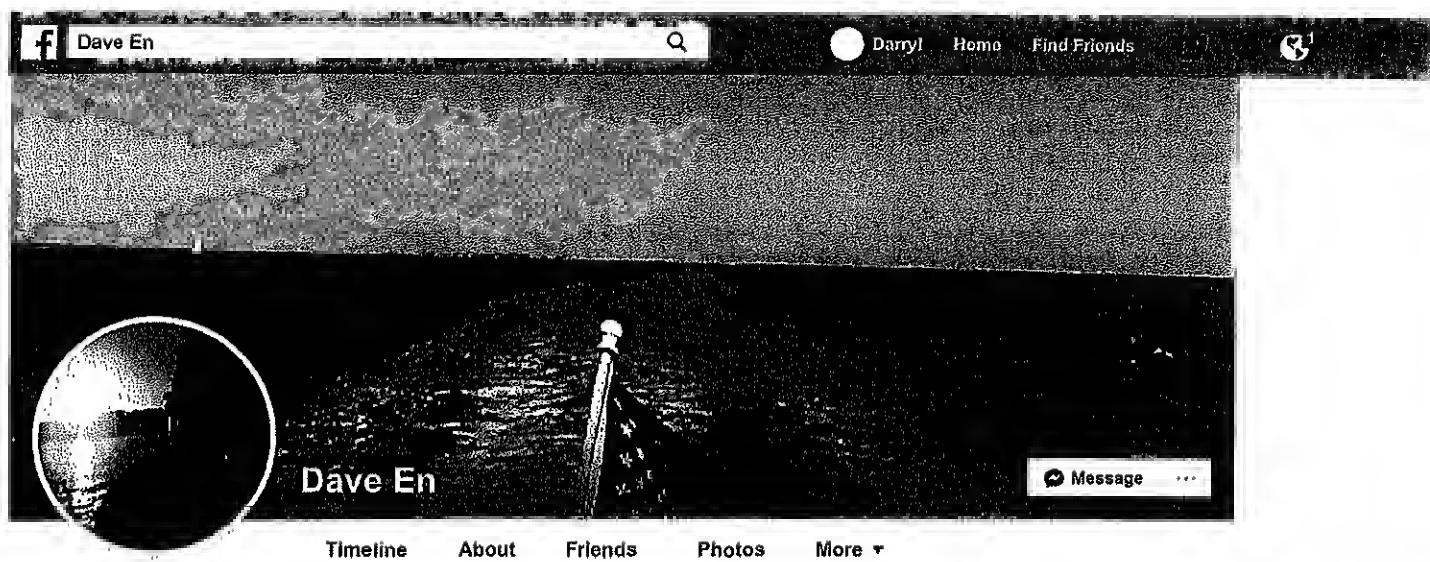

I reread the article. In my personal opinion, this guy is being railroaded. Using a fitness for duty exam as retaliation is an old and scummy tactic. I think if Boden's attorney turns over enough rocks, he may find facts tending to indicate the fitness for duty was a retaliatory, negative job action. The Undersheriff appears inordinately motivated to scour Boden's personnel file to build a disciplinary case against him. The Undersheriff didn't know Boden was going to run for Sheriff? That is completely unbelievable in my opinion. I don't know Boden, so I am not taking sides in terms of the Sheriff race, or whether there is any merit to the charges, simply pointing out the basis of the case is highly suspect and stinks of political retaliation. - NJLEN
